

H. M. Queen Wilhelmina of Holland leading a column of Dutch cavalry after manœuvres. The Dutch Queen is justifiably proud of her small but decidedly efficient army and takes a most active interest in its operations—often taking part in them herself.

Th. Moussaut.

Above—All that remains of a Hun battery after the attack of October 23, during the battle of Chemin-des-Dames. The shell landed near this artillery caisson and killed three horses and a Boche artilleryman in his seat.

Underwood.

Miss Catherine Bleeker, manager of Broadway Theatre, enjoys the distinction of being the only member of her sex holding such a position in New York City.

Central News.

the left—An unusual picture showing an uninhabited Flanders battlefield. It gives one a splendid idea why progress is so slow on this front. To the right of the picture German soldiers are buried in a sea of mud. The only safe travel from this desolate waste is over the little boardwalk that have been constructed by French engineers.

Pict. Press.

Above—This British camel driver with a transport corps in Palestine takes a chance with his pet camel.

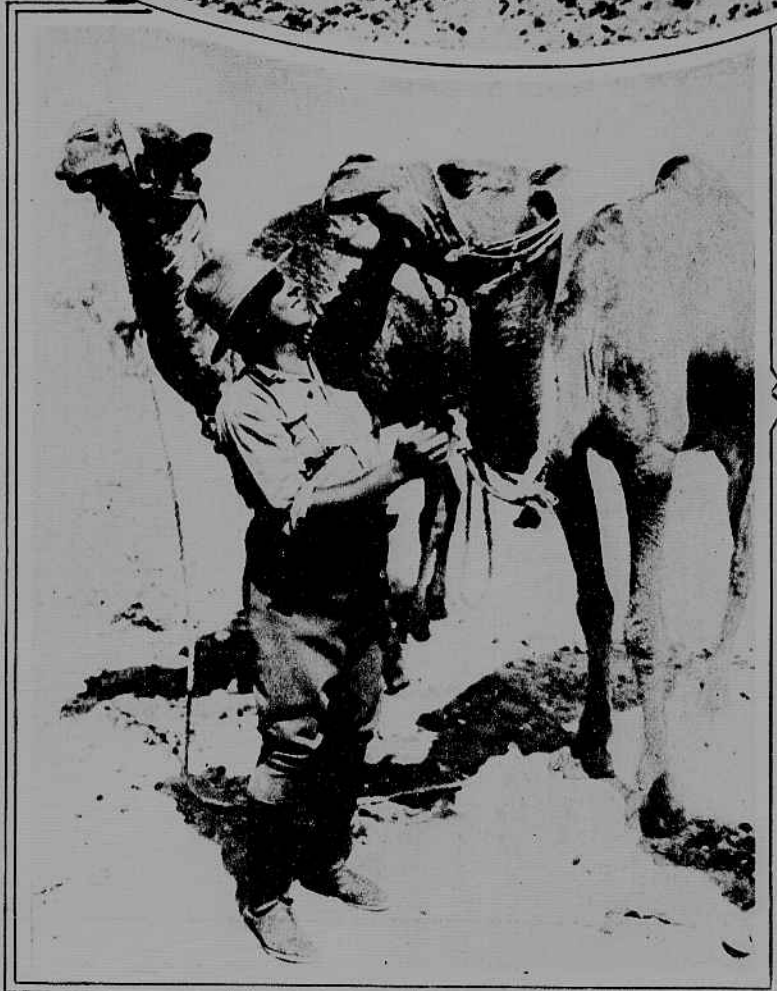

Underwood.

To the right—French stretcher bearers pause on the battlefield to examine a captured German machine gun. The dead Boche in the foreground met his fate defending this same gun.

Kadel & Herbert.

To the left—One of the military carrier pigeons of the U. S. Army Signal Corps—showing how the capsule containing the message is inserted in the ring attached to the pigeon's leg.

Inter. Film.

Admiral Sims, the commander of our naval forces overseas, visits the St. John School for Boys, at Ealing. The lads in the picture forming the guard of honor are from the Royal Flying Corps Technical School.

Inter. Film.

the right—A most unusual picture of a German Gotha airplane shot down in flames by anti-aircraft gun. The picture was taken at the moment of the machine's falling, and scores of French troops and peasants can be seen running to the scene of the disaster.

Pictorial Press.

